Second denial for landfill site

By CHRIS RIZK
ANP Special Writer

The Department of Natural Resources last Tuesday denied a second application by Environmental Management Systems to construct a hazardous waste landfill at 1-275 and Will Carleton Road in Huron Township because of a technicality.

The application, termed 'administratively incomplete', was rejected because EMS copyrighted its application which, in effect, prohibited the DNR from disseminating information on the application to the public, according to Pete Quackinbush, DNR permit engineer for the project.

In a letter sent to Thomas Handyside, vice president of EMS, dated July 30, Handyside was informed that the "copyright does not allow the Department (DNR) to fulfill its public participation requirements under Act 64...therefore your application is denied..."

The DNR had 30 days to act upon EMS' application. July 30 was that deadline for declaring it either incomplete or complete.

Act 64 refers to Michigan's Hazardous Waste Management Act which states proceedings must be opened to the public, Quackinbush said.

"I've never seen an application copyrighted before," he explained. "If they were to take the copyright off, I believe they wouldn't have to submit another application (to receive DNR consideration)."

Quackinbush said nothing in the application was stamped confidential which might explain the company's reasons for the copyright.

EMS, he said, was concerned with protecting the confidentiality of the application nevertheless.

Handyside, contacted by phone Monday, said that his firm would reapply for a third review.

"Let me put it this way," he said, "we spent over $500,000 in preparing the application, we're certainly not going to stop at this point."

Handyside said EMS officials did not anticipate "these kinds of problems" when applying to the DNR a second time.

The DNR, he said, "elected to make their own interpretation" of the reason for the copyright.

"We explained our reasons for doing this—we didn't want to make it available to a competitor," he explained.

EMS, he said, will consider removing the copyright as "one of our options", he said.

EMS previously applied to the DNR in January 1984 but was rejected on the basis of an administrative error.

If the company applies for a third time, it will be one of many opportunities available to an applicant for a landfill site.

It is the numerous opportunities for seeking DNR approval that has stirred the anger of many citizens and lawmakers in Huron Township.

Rep. Lynn Owen (D-Maybee) indicated that he was "glad" that the DNR refused to process the application.

"I'm sure EMS is going to go back and reapply," Owen said, "but they've got to understand that everytime they do, they're going to see me standing in front of them."

Huron Valley Citizen Association president Janet Kidd last week said that the association "kind of knew that the application would be rejected."

"They didn't have a 346 permit and then they copyrighted the application," she said, suggesting that those two features were strikes against the company.

Act 346 is a permit for relocation of a drain, which, in this case, exists in the middle of the land owned by EMS and under consideration for the landfill permit.

EMS applied for permission to reroute the Duffin and Winnie Drain around the perimeter of the proposed site.

The drain, situated on a 100-year flood plain, must be relocated to comply with Act 64 which stipulates that a landfill cannot be located on a flood plain.

DNR essentially said in its denial that EMS must have an Act 346 permit (drain relocation) before the department will issue an Act 64 permit (hazardous waste).

The site is under debate because of its proximity to the Huron/Clinton Metro Park system and water and sewage drains.

An aquifer, an underground water source, lies near the proposed landfill site which supplies Monroe County with drinking water, Kidd said.

"You don't put a landfill over an aquifer, near parks, near people," she said. "If you put a ban on landfills, they'd have to find the technology to dispose waste. Nobody should have to live near a toxic dump."

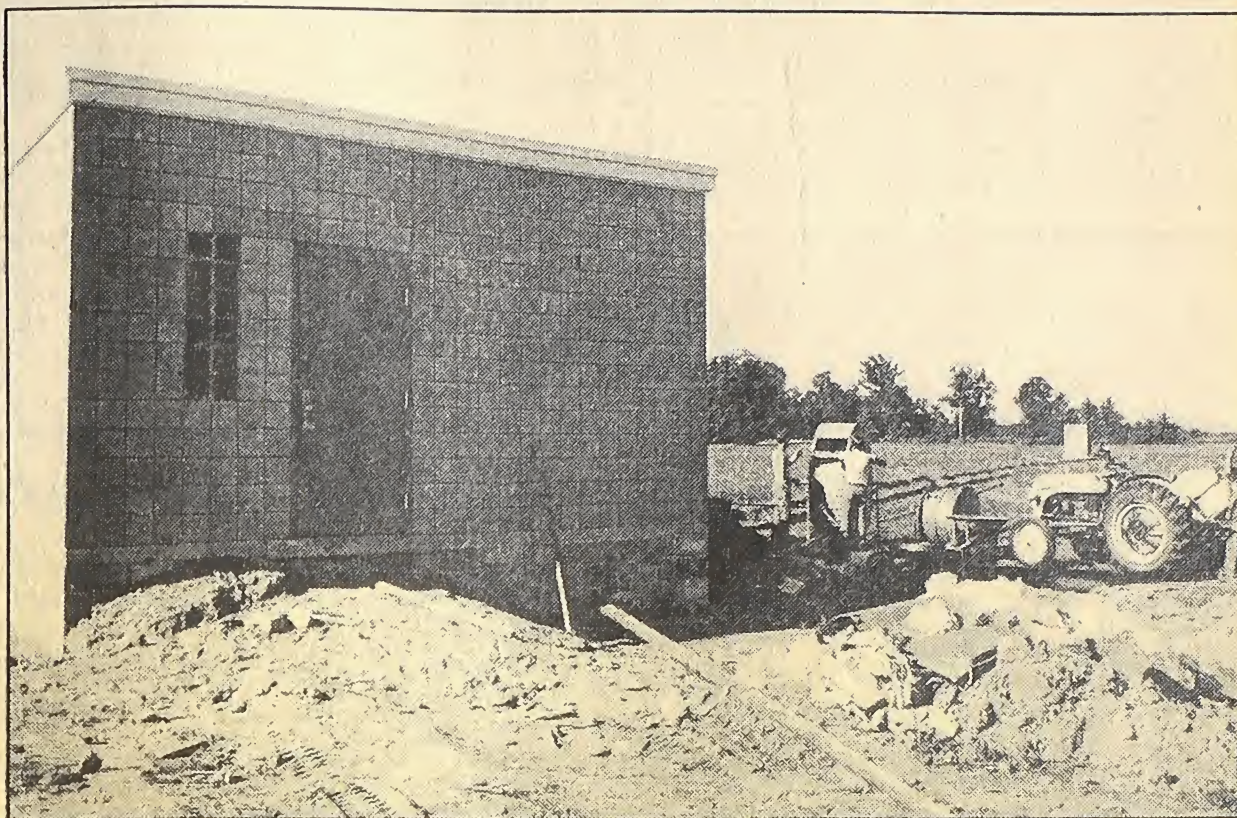

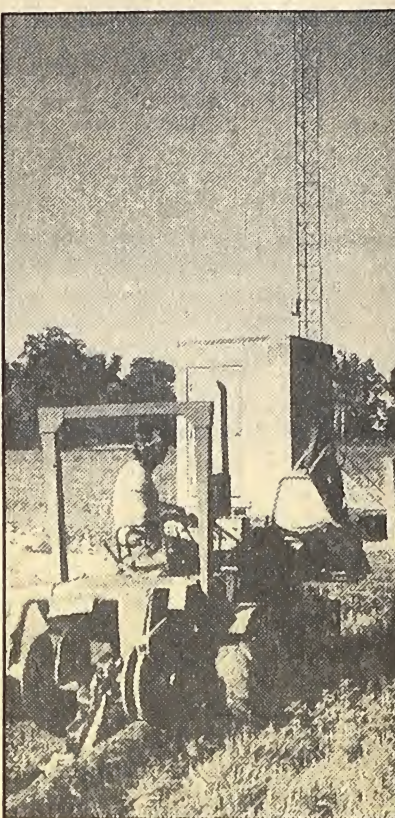

The Huron Valley citizen's group met last week shortly after the denial was made public to rally support for a renewed effort to fight the EMS landfill proposal.

"We're ready to fight," she affirmed. "I can't reveal our plans because that would be tipping our hand to (Handyside)."

EMS operates a solid waste landfill in Sumpter Township.

Only one toxic waste site is in use in Michigan, according to DNR officials.

Wayne Disposal in Van Buren Township is one of two hazardous waste sites with a permit to operate.

Romulus radio listeners will have to wait a little longer before tuning into WNZK (690 am) station located on Cogswell Road. The newly-approved 500-watt, dawn-to-dusk radio broadcast, scheduled for transmission this week now that transmission towers and the building are erected, was postponed until problems with power lines can be solved.

Airport construction eyed

By CHRIS RIZK
ANP Special Writer

Metro airport authorities last week announced plans for a $100 million expansion-reconstruction project that will take place beginning as early as this month.

The expansion, according to Tim Ward, Director of Airports, was initiated because of increased air traffic in and out of Metro. Additional baggage claims, ticket counters, holding rooms and aircraft and parking space are a part of those areas to be expanded at the request of Republic Airlines, Ward said.

A people mover is considered for the passenger terminal as well, he said.

Republic Airlines, in October 1984, established Detroit as a major hub and requested at that time that Metro create additional space within the airport.

Republic currently operates 185 flights a day.

A major 'hub' means that an airline feeds all aircraft into a particular facility, in this case, Metro, within a certain time frame.

All planes come in at approximately one time during the day and within a 30 minute period, 20 through 35 planes then depart.

Once an airline establishes a need for additional space, it is the responsibility of airport to make provisions for enlargement, Ward said.

In Republic's case, Metro was unable to fully fund the $30 million project. As a result, Republic will provide approximately half the cost of the expansion until Metro can reimburse the airline.

Metro will then lease the added facilities to Republic, as is typical procedure, Ward said.

In addition to adding space for Republic, Metro will initiate a reconstruction program that will require the shut down of two major runways, Ward said.

Reconstruction will close one of the runways for eight weeks and another for approximately 16 weeks beginning August 12.

It could cause slight delays in passenger air travel, officials said.

One runway, used primarily in the Winter season or for only ten percent of the time during the year, will be closed but, according to Ward, the impact will be minimal.

With two of Metro's four runways under improvement, it is estimated that a 30 percent reduction in capacity of aircraft will be experienced.

"Passengers will be aware of construction taking place," Ward said, "but we will program it so that it is as little inconvenience as possible."

Pavement on the runways will be reinforced with thicker concrete.

The need for additional space is indicative, Ward said, of the 28 percent growth Metro is experiencing this past year.

Most airports are experiencing an average increase of 15 through 20 percent growth, Ward said.

Attributed to the growth is the increased air flight due to a healthier economy and Republic's establishment of a hub at Metro.

Metro services approximately 4 million air travelers a year. The last major expansion began in 1964. Since that time, Ward said he had not noticed the need for expansion efforts.

Metro will hire a planning and engineering firm to identify what are the needs of the airport and airline.

A plan will then be established to sell bonds to fund the capital improvements.

Ornametal fire leads to probe by state

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Fire officials are investigating the cause of a fire Saturday at a plastic factory that may be linked to a fire earlier last week at a pallet company, Fire Inspector Charles Bradley said.

The fire, at Vacuum Ornametal, a plastic fabricating plant located at 11380 Harrison, began Saturday, August 3 at approximately 8:30 p.m.

At least 40 firefighters from Romulus and Taylor responded to the blaze, which was labeled 'major' by fire officials.

Firefighters battled the smoke and fire until 8 a.m. the following morning.

The fire was determined to have started outside the plant in a storage area under a metal canopy near a dumpster and pallet area, Bradley said.

No dollar amount has been released on the damages but estimates range near $750,000 in structural and content loss.

The building that burned was used primarily for storage, according to fire reports.

Bradley said that the main building which housed the plant is still operable except for smoke and electrical damages.

The building was unoccupied at the time of the fire. No injuries were reported.

Fire officials, including the State Fire Marshall and a state task force are investigating the incident for suspected arson.

Two fires last week at Drysdel Pallet Company at 11345 Middlebelt is still under investigation by fire officials, Bradley said.

Firefighters responded to two consecutive fires, one which occurred Saturday, July 27 and another Sunday, July 28, at the local pallet storage company.

The company is located directly behind Vacuum Ornametal, Bradley said.

The three fires are being treated as "related", he said.

Anyone with information regarding the fires can contact the Romulus Police Department at 941-8400 or the Michigan Arson Committee at (517)322-0469.

A $2,000 reward is offered by the committee if information leads to the apprehension of a suspected arsonist.

Speedway thief sought

Romulus police are asking for persons who stopped for gas at a local Speedway Gas Station and may have witnessed a hold-up that occurred at approximately 1:30 p.m. Friday, August 2 to contact the police station.

Police said a black male, in his mid 30's, entered the gas station located at Wayne and Wick roads and robbed the cash drawer of an undisclosed amount of money.

He was driving, according to witness reports, an older-model black vehicle.

The suspect, police said, entered the station with a customer, waited until that person left the building and proceeded to produce a handgun which he allegedly used to commit the robbery.

He then put a female clerk on duty into a storage area with instructions not to exit until he left the station, apparently unnoticed, police said.

Police believe customers may have been unaware that a robbery was taking place. They are hoping that someone may have witnessed the suspect's departure.

BPW members attend convention

Seven members of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club were among the 3,000 delegates, who attended the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs' (BPW/USA) National Convention in Hartford, Connecticut, July 19-23.

Sophie Zoller, delegate, and Georgia Badgett, alternate, actively participated in the BPW/USA internal and external political process. They cast their votes on upcoming issues for 1985-86, including securing equal treatment for women in all areas of employment and support implementation of pay equity; reforming laws governing Social Security and pension programs to achieve equity and adequacy for women and men, regardless of marital status, in all phases of economic life, with special emphasis on the elimination of discrimination in insurance; and supporting equal educational opportunity at all levels.

William O'Neil, governor of Connecticut, welcomed the delegation on the opening night.

Greetings and remarks were given by the two representatives from Connecticut through Nancy Johnson and Barbara Kennelly. Both are members of the U.S. Congress.

Daily delegates heard an amplified phone message from Nairobi, Kenya, where the World Conference is reviewing the results on the United Nations' Decade for Women, 1975-1985. Virginia Allen, past national BPW president, and Cecil Fox, United Nation rep, were the reporting women from Nairobi.

Emphasis at the World Conference was on equality, development and peace for all the women of the world.

Each morning in Hartford Network Breakfasts were held, keyed to the positions and topics of working women insurance, real estate, investments, computers, and attorneys, bank officers, retirees, bookkeepers, managers, supervisors, teachers and secretaries.

The Michigan breakfast was held on Saturday morning to a capacity crowd. Michigan items of canned food were distributed as prizes, and maps, booklets, bumper stickers and lapel buttons promoting Michigan were distributed among the hundreds of attendees.

Action was taken by the convention delegates to initiate a capital campaign to raise $2,650 to purchase, or build, a new BPW headquarters in Washington, D.C. The current historical headquarters at 2012 Massachusetts Ave., has become too small to house all the computer equipment.

The highlight of the convention was having Lyn St. James of Dearborn, race car driver for Ford Motor Co., speak on packaging your potential. She has risen from piano teacher and secretary to consumer advisor for the automaker. St. James also conducted an auto repair workshop for members.

Sarah Hargrave, the director of corporate marketing/public affairs for Sears Roebuck, and Co. of Chicago, Ill., delivered a message on financial management for women.

Author Paula Nelson presented special money-making tips each morning to the delegation. Nelson's latest book, "Guide to Getting Rich," will be published in January 1986 and will be serialized in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

A doll's house

A hobby becomes a trade for local craftswomen

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Betty Boyer began "toying" with dolls in 1980.

Her fascination with the traditional child's play transcends any common pastime.

Boyer's interest in dolls lies much deeper — she hand creates them from fine clay into porcelain dolls.

Boyer makes antique reproductions of dolls via an intricate and painstaking method of molding, drying and painting.

Her names carries with it the status and reputation of that of some of the finest dollmakers currently in production.

It's "a lot of work" she admits but worthwhile for someone such as herself who holds a unique appreciation for older things.

"The dolls are like little people, they take on their own personality," she said recently in an interview.

From her home in Romulus, Boyer and her husband, Robert, take as much pride in the fruits of their labor as a mother does in her own child.

"I chose to keep it in my own home — this way it's a job and it's not a job," she explained.

And lest one scoff at the idea of a male taking part in what is considered a female hobby, kindly note that the original dollmakers were men, many of whom (Marque, Jumeau, Steigner, Marseille) became famous in their trade.

To further prove the point that, for Robert, dollmaking is serious business, Betty said that she receives requests for dolls made by Robert only, and not by herself, as is usually the custom.

And, Robert proudly added, his "first two dolls won blue ribbons."

Considered the number one collector's item now, having taken over the lead previously held by stamps, Betty boasts over 225 on hand ranging in price from $25-$475.

A tiny community of inanimate creatures representing areas from around the world decorate her living room and dining room, which substitute as a showing room for prospective buyers.

French, German, oriental, clowns, Shirley Temple and character dolls such as the Campbell Soup Girl and Betty Boop are just a small sampling of her talent as an artist.

Her basement holds an array of ceramic (porcelain) work tools, tables and a multitude of transparent nature once finished.

Dollmaking, serious, good-quality reproductions of antique dolls representing eras over 100 years, is demanding and full-time work, Betty said.

And with two shops for which she must supply dolls, she, and hubby, have their hands full and not a "minute of spare" time."

Betty presently supplies La Gallerie Dolls and Miniatures in Mackinaw and the Wildcat, Incorporated with her work.

Her trade label, 'Beth Ann' dolls, is the ultimate test of whether or not ones work is truly sought after.

She has been showing her dolls at various festivals, arts and crafts shows and exhibitions around the country, including the Dearborn Folk Art Show, the Plymouth Fall Festival and the Dearborn Historical Society Show.

She recently displayed her porcelain dolls at the Dearborn Home Coming arts show for which she expected her "followers" to stop by and examine her new doll editions.

'Followers' are those people who are collectors of either antique reproductions or of the antique dolls who faithfully trace the paths of noted dollmakers from exhibit to exhibit in order to purchase or admire.

Her followers can be found in Florida, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and numerous other states where she has displayed her dolls or entered shows.

"We used to travel all over the country to doll shows — the mid-west, Wisconsin, Illinois — these shows were judged by the people who started this business," Robert explained.

For those who consider the Ann Arbor Art Show the true test of ones worth in a trade, the Boyers recently passed up the opportunity to apply for entry in that reknown event because, as she confidently suggested, she "doesn't need the publicity or exposure" or the money associated with artist sales at the show.

It is 'too much' she said, to prepare for and to stand "all day in the beating sun" with her fragile items.

"Once you get established, Ann Arbor is a killer," she said emphatically.

Once employed by the Ford

Motor Company as a supervisor, Betty now devotes most of her time to dollmaking (Robert holds down a full-time job in addition to helping his wife) although she admits that even one job can be stressful.

"I've put more hours into this than I ever did at my other job," she said.

She works at her trade seven days a week every month.

A car accident in January of this year caused her to reevaluate her strict routine of finding time only for doll creations.

Hospitalization and recuperation led Betty to value most her time with her family. The revelation that life can be short led also to a renewed interest in her work and a greater appreciation for her trade.

She now works at it with zeal but moderation — instead of working into the early morning hours every day she and her husband prepare the dolls until 1 or 2 a.m. only a few days a week.

She teaches porcelain dollmaking to approximately 60 students several days and evenings a week. Her work load, she admitted, has been greatly reduced because of a second accident a month ago.

The classes, a non-ending testimony to her inordinate skill, are in addition to the time she spends making her own dolls for display and purchase.

with ceramic and branched off into porcelain.

"But they don't have the right concept to deal with porcelain," she said.

The doll clothes, to complete the strict authenticity demanded by Betty and by judges, are hand-made to fit the doll's era.

A completed doll, historically accurate, can take anywhere from days to weeks to prepare and present for showing.

But it is not simply for the glory of having an ardent group of admirers nor the money for which the Boyers apply so much devotion and energy.

It is the idea that they are creating history for future generations of Boyers and others, that they are paving the way for a legacy of dollmaking.

In addition, "somewhere down the line," in 30 or 50 years, original antiques will drop out of circulation and cause the current reproductions to be more highly-valued.

As Robert said, someday their dolls will be antiques and the Boyer name will be synonymous with quality when their name is found inscribed on a doll's neck.

"I have a lot of women who buy my dolls because someday they'll be worth a lot of money," Robert said.

At least for the time, their dolls mean more to the Boyers than the promise of future renown.

EMPLOYEES CARE BUT LARGE AUTOMOTIVE COMPANY DOESN'T!!!

Dear Letter Writer:

Everyone in my department is upset about what has been going on. Please help!!

Sincerely, DAK

Dear Department Heads:

This letter is a reasonable attempt on the part of all of the undersigned to make management aware of the conditions presently existing in our department.

Management's attitude with regard to personnel leaves a great deal to be desired. There have been no promotions, with the exception of grade promotions, which required the individuals who received them to struggle very hard for recognition. When a Grade 7 resigns or retires, which has happened in excess of three times in the last two years, promotions to Grade 7 are not made within the department, but rather the position is given to someone from another department. This totally removes department employee incentive.

It appears that management looks last at our people with respect to job description, promotions or salary increases. Management has, in fact, been overheard saying that no one in our department is qualified for a promotion or raise of any kind. Looking at workload levels, it is apparent that job demands are three times greater than in our counterpart departments.

We all know that our department is a very integral and necessary part of the company. The sale of trucks generates the income that provides us with our paychecks as much, if not more, than automobile sales. This would lead to the obvious conclusion that, as a department, we are important to the company and deserve the maximum in consideration.

During the past two years, Truck Specification Analyst personnel have been reduced by 60 percent. This has been accomplished by layoff or retirement, with no consideration given by the company to replacing these individuals. There are presently 6 individuals performing where there were, in the past, 15 persons. Obviously, this decline in personnel has greatly increased the workload. With the inclusion of additional vehicle lines, the undersigned are questioning their ability to continue to "get the job done."

In summation, the entire department as well as Change Analysts are suffering from frustration, abandonment, confusion and insecurity.

The employee involvement program, originally initiated by the company, for the purpose of two-way communication between management and employees, which was to result in a mutually rewarding situation, has totally collapsed in our department. It has become quite apparent that employee involvement is of little, or no, benefit to the employee, but rather serves only the company.

This fact was driven home quite clearly with the recent promotion of an automobile individual to a Grade 7 in the Truck Department, rather than an existing truck person receiving the promotion from within his own department. The latter promotion would have been much more reasonable inasmuch as the truck person, without a doubt, has the greatest amount of experience as well as seniority.

It almost appears as though management views our department as a non-entity. The effect of this perception upon personnel in the department is devastating. Clearly, the issues raised in this letter cannot continue without adverse effect upon the company. Isn't there something that can be done?

Sincerely, DAK

RESOLUTION: After management received the letter, they convened a meeting. The employee

Keeping up with Smith

699-2714 by dorothea smith

If you were part of the crowds that attended the Wayne County Fair in Van Buren Township recently, you probably saw the smartly uniformed young men and women who were directing the flow of traffic into the parking area.

These were members of the Van Buren Police Explorers Bobby Butts, Tony Butts, Steve Pearson, Lori Allen, Chris Hays, Matt Haines, Frank Uden, Scott Ellis and Todd Rupert, who spent many hours on duty at the fairgrounds and are to be commended for their dedication.

Van Buren Police Explorers are a group of young men and women between the ages of 14-21 interested in the law enforcement field.

Every year explorers throughout Michigan police departments attend a mini-police academy held in Grayling, the Michigan Law Enforcement Explorer Academy. This consists of one week of semi-military training, which begins at 6 a.m. with physical training, then breakfast, and onto specialized classes which include accident investigation, firearms, crime prevention, narcotics and report writing, to name a few. Then comes dinner and lights out at 10 p.m.

The instructors and staff are all experts in a particular field of law enforcement and come from various police departments throughout Michigan, making the Michigan Law Enforcement Explorer Academy one of the best in the United States.

This year Van Buren Police Explorers sent four members to Grayling: Jerry Salame, Arthur Burke, Brian Binert and Natalie Higgins.

Because this was Jerry's second year, his training was more advanced - individual and specialized.

The academy's main goal is to provide individuals with a taste of the law enforcement field before major career choices are made.

If you are between 14-21 years old and interested in law enforcement as a career, contact the Van Buren Police Department to receive more information about the Explorer program at 699-8930. Business hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The friends of the Fred C. Fischer Library are looking forward to their second year and hoping it will be even more successful. The Board of Directors for this year are Dolores Temple, president; Ginger Bruder, vice-president; Joyce Ennis, treasurer; Dorothy Smith, secretary; with committee chairmen Fannie Butler, community liaison, Connie Ryckman, gifts and foundations, Elton Golwitzer, membership, Patty Van Buren Craig, youth activities, and Doris Roe, by-laws.

Mrs. Verdys Shepherd was hostess again this year for the 14th annual July family picnic at her home in Belleville.

Family members came from Boynton Beach, Florida, Montrose, Dexter and Ypsilanti as well as here in Belleville.

Games were played, including entertainment by an impromptu band made up of family members playing home-made instruments, and family history was updated.

The youngest member present was 9-month-old Stephanie Shephard, daughter of Brian and Nancy of Belleville. The oldest was Grove Shephard, 79, of Boynton Beach.

A long time resident of the area, Mrs. Gertrude Higgins, is retiring and plans to make her home in Harrison, with winters spent in Florida.

Mrs. Higgins has been companion to Mrs. Nathan Lurie of Birmingham for a number of years. Nathan Lurie was the founder of Wrigley Super Markets.

The Porzondek family reunion was held at Van Buren Township Park. Family members from around the state attended, including those of Pat Cullin and Kenneth and Shirley Carnahan. Also planned is a reunion of the Carnahan family at the home of Delbert and Virginia Carnahan here in Belleville.

Part of the festivities will be a dance birthday celebration for Delbert and his sister, Violet from Indiana. Mr. Carnahan will be 81, Violet is not telling.

Pvt. Steven W. Klein, son of Shirley M. Klein of Smith road, Romulus, and Paul J. Klein of Garden City, has completed one station unit training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. Completion of this course qualifies the soldier as a light-weapon infantryman and as an indirect-fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.

Klein is scheduled to serve at Fort Ord, Calif.

He is a 1984 graduate of Garden City High School.

Airman Gary R. Shepard, son of Billy R. Shepard of Hamlet Drive, Ypsilanti, and Lois W. Grant of Jacksonville, N.C., has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the chapel management field.

His wife, Susan, is the daughter of Raymond W. and Virginia L. Kohr, of North Shore Drive, Belleville.

He is a 1981 graduate of Belleville High School.

Breslin-Gotham exchange vows

Denise Ann Breslin became the bride of Donald Lee Gotham on April 13 at the Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livonia. The Rev. William C. Lindholm performed the ceremony in front of 225 guests. Altar arrangements included yellow gladiolas, pink carnations and white daisies. The bride approached the altar on the arm of her father, William F. Breslin of Livonia, wearing a formal-length gown of taffeta overlaid with schiffli re-embroidered lace. Matching lace trimmed the neckline and the puffed sleeves which tapered to the wrist. A cathedral train provided back accents to the gown. The bride chose a hat covered with matching lace to complete her bridal ensemble. She carried a bouquet of cascading stephanotis and orchids.

Donna Houser served as her sister's matron of honor. She wore a yellow taffeta gown, featuring a sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves. Her bouquet consisted of yellow freesia, pink carnations and daisies. Bridesmaids included the bride's aunt, Joan Breslin of Livonia, Tracy Dreyer of Warren and Terri Dulude of Ann Arbor. Their gowns were identical to that worn by the matron of honor. Kevin Schneider, a former college teammate of the groom served as best man. The groom asked Dennis Breslin of Plymouth, brother of the bride, to be an usher, as well as Brian Housley of Flat Rock and Michael Plungis of Boulder, Colorado. Housley and Plungis are friends of the groom and former Waynites, who all played football together at Wayne Memorial High School.

Mrs. Breslin chose a full-length teal blue chiffon gown for her daughter's wedding, while the groom's mother, Doris Busuito, wore a dusty rose-colored gown with a matching lace jacket. Helen Gotham, the groom's step-mother, wore a sea-foam full-length gown. They all wore corsages fashioned of miniature roses. Karas House of Redford was the location chosen for the reception, which included dinner and dancing. The bride and Johnsons gather

More than 40 members of Lex, Savilla, Brigitte and Lisa Johnson families from Romulus and the Detroit metropolitan area motored to Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, for a family reunion July 19. The group spent four days at Niagara Falls. Joining in the festivities were family members from Arkansas, Maryland, New Jersey and Alabama. Also on hand were May Davis and members of her family, Cynthia Davis and family, Mamie Johnson, Wayne County Sheriff's Sgt. Lonzo Johnson and family, Norman Johnson and family, Melvin Johnson and family and Sonia Owens and family.

groom then left for an 8-day Caribbean cruise. Doris and Sam Busito hosted the rehearsal dinner at Corsi's in Livonia. The bride is a 1979 graduate of Bentley High School. She graduated from Central Michigan University in 1984, where she was a distinguished volleyball player. She is presently teaching mathematics and computer science at Ferndale High School. The groom graduated from Wayne Memorial in 1976 and from Wayne State University in 1981, where he earned a degree in criminal justice. He's a noted athlete in this area and is employed as a Wayne police officer. They are making their home in the City of Wayne.

Wildflower bouquets of Queen Anne's lace and tiger lilies, as well as banners made by the bride and parents of the bride and groom, decorated the chapel at Camp Friedenswald in Cassopolis, Michigan, for the July 14 nuptials of Michelle Schrich of Mechanicsville, Virginia, and Karl H. Shelly of Wayne. The bride is the daughter of Laverne and Carol Schrich of Mechanicsville. The groom is the son of Alton and Elizabeth Shelly of Wayne. Ninety-five guests were in attendance for the ceremony, officiated by Patricia Shelly, associate pastor of the First Mennonite Church of Denver, Colorado. Music for the double-ring rite was by Glen Shelly, brother of the groom, who played saxophone solos for the processional and recessional; and Patricia Shelly, cousin of the groom, who led the guests in three songs and played the guitar. The bride chose a street-length white dress accented with lace and miniature buttons down the back. A garland of baby's breath served as her headpiece. A reception for the new-

There's a world of difference between learning and loving to learn.

That's the Children's World child care difference.

Learning is a roomful of energetic preschoolers trying to sit quietly while a teacher recites a pre-planned lesson from a standardized manual. Loving to learn is that same group of children exploring the wonders of the world with a teacher who makes the process of learning as fresh and exciting as the lesson itself. That's the Children's World Concept. And the Children's World difference your child deserves.

The Children's World Concept: A child taught with love loves to learn. Our teachers teach from the heart to open the mind. They're free to create activities which spark each child's natural eagerness to learn at his own pace. Your child will gain confidence and welcome new experiences. In short, your child will learn the joys of learning at Children's World. And that's a lesson that will last a lifetime.

Come see our world of difference. The best way to understand the Children's World Concept is to see it in action. Visit your neighborhood Children's World, and discover the difference our loving care can make.

chef larry janes

By now, your garden has virtually erupted with bountiful loads of zucchini, tomatoes, peppers, onions, eggplant, peas and who knows what else. You have tried to pawn the excess off on the neighbors, but to no avail. As a matter of fact, when they see you coming down the driveway with a shopping bag, they run inside, shut the doors and turn off the lights hoping they won't have to say "no thank you" for the 43rd time. You have even tried to "pay" the paperboy with what definitely looks like the back door of Eastern Market!

Don't fret America! This solemn column will be devoted to finding idle ways to use and dispose of your vegetarian albatross. This writer will also welcome your ideas and recipes for all those leftover vegetables that everyone gets sick and tired of just as they're becoming more abundant.

before we begin discussing recipes, think about using your summer bounty as a pretty centerpiece for a family picnic. This writer has thrown a few parties in his time and has used hollowed out green peppers for serving appetizers and drinks! A Bloody Mary cocktail looks especially appealing as will your favorite dip (for vegetables, silly) in those hollowed out vegetables such as peppers, eggplants, etc. I'll be passing along my favorite recipe for tomato soup later on in this article, but try using hollowed-out tomato cups for serving chilled salads (macaroni, potato, shrimp) and even doubling up as a soup bowl, too!

If your garden was visited by the omnipresent zucchini rabbit, (I swear I picked it ALL yesterday) I used my my food processor to shred up about 6 bags of the stuff and I'll freeze it for fall baking binges. For something great the family (even the kids) will enjoy, take your favorite garden vegetable (I use zucchini, tomatoes, onions, peppers) and cube into chunks. Buy a couple packages of inexpensive "poppin fresh" dough (biscuits) and press them out, fill with your favorite veggies, top with a slice of your favorite cheese, wrap up, brush with melted butter/margarine and pop in a 350-degree oven for 15-20 minutes or until golden. Made these on Channel 7's "Kelly & Company" and the stage crew went wild!

Even before thinking about detroying your added quantities of vegetables, remember your local food co-op, soup kitchen or contact your church or civic organization and find out who in your community can use your bounty. Went for a family outing last week and on our way down to the Detroit Science Center, dropped off a bushel of green beans at the Capuchin Kitchen right off I-94 and Mt. Elliot.

Chef Larry will welcome your suggestions, comments and recipes. If your comment or recipe is printed, Chef Larry will send you some of his favorite recipes in return. Send all comments, suggestions, ideas and recipes to Chef Larry, c/o The Associated Newspapers, P.O. Box 578, Wayne, MI 48184.

Bon Appetite!

Hot or Chilled Tomato Soup (easily serves 6)

1 stick butter/margarine
1/2 cup green onion, chopped (about 2 bunches)
3 pounds large tomatoes (about 6-7) peeled, seeded, chopped
2 teaspoons salt (or salt sub.)
1/2 teaspoon instant coffee powder
6 cups broth (I use chicken, vegetable, beef, they're all good)
1 cup tomato sauce
1/4 cup tomato paste
3 tablespoons chopped basil (fresh) or 1 tablespoon (dried)
1 teaspoon dill weed healthy dash hot sauce (Tobasco)
1/2 cup whipping cream
2 egg yolks

Melt butter in a large saucepan. Add onion, sautee until softened (about 10 minutes), stir in tomatoes, coffee and salt, cook until heated through-out. Stir in broth, tomato sauce, tomato paste, herbs and cooks 25 minutes. If desired, you can place in a blender and blend onions and tomatoes until smooth, (but I like the texture otherwise). Just before serving, whisk cream and egg yolks in a bowl. Gradually whisk in 1 cup of hot soup unto yolk mixture, cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until slightly thickened. DO NOT BOIL. Ladle into serving bowls, garnish with chopped green onion. Great chilled too!

ZUCCHINI BUNS (OR BREAD)
4 cups zucchini, shredded
1/2 cup oil
1/2 cup honey
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup whole wheat flour
1/2 cup cornmeal (or oatmeal)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

OPTIONAL: 2-3 mashed ripe bananas, 1/4 cup chopped nuts.

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and mix well. If making buns, pour into cupcake papers, if making a loaf, pour into a lightly greased breadpan and bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

GAZPACHO

(Cold mixed vegetable soup)
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 celery stalks, chopped fine
1 bunch tomatoes, chopped fine
2 large tomatoes, chopped fine
2 green peppers, chopped fine
2 cucumbers, peeled, chopped fine
4 cups tomato juice (or V-8)
2 teaspoons chopped fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dried
1 teaspoon dash Worcestershire
2 tablespoons lemon or lime juice salt and fresh ground pepper

Combine all ingredients in a glass bowl or dish, mix well. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 2 hours to blend the flavors. Serve in hollowed out tomato or green pepper cups. Leave out the oil for a great diet cooler!

HOW TO PEEL

AND SEED A TOMATO

To peel: Bring a large pot of water to a rapid boil. While water is boiling, remove core from the tomatoes. Using a large slotted spoon, drop the tomatoes 2 at a time in the boiling water for 30 seconds. Remove with slotted spoon and IMMEDIATELY run under cool water in the sink to stop the cooking process. At this point, skin should easily peel off.

To seed: Cut peeled tomatoe in half. Using the hand, place the half tomato in your hand with the cut side facing down. gently squeeze and seeds should squirt out. If tomato is underripe, a small spoon might be needed.

Never ending story. . .

Last week the State Department of Natural Resources for the second time in less than a year denied Environmental Managements Systems' application for permission to construct a hazardous waste landfill in Huron Township.

The denial was based on technicality. EMS had copyrighted its application to keep it confidential.

EMS has indicated that it has no intention of backing down on its decision to build the landfill on a 300-acre site at I-275 and Will Carleton Road in Huron Township.

While EMS is bent on locating there, Huron residents are also as determined to keep it out, but they can find little comfort in this latest DNR rejection, since there is no stipulation as to how many times an application can be rejected before the proposed development becomes a moot issue.

DNR faced a sticky issue in having a copyrighted EMS application. It was doubtful that the application could be copied for distribution among those agencies that must review it, let alone be made available to the public.

EMS maintains that the application was copyrighted to prevent other companies from using it in applying for similar permits.

EMS also contends that it was not its intention to keep information from the public as indicated by the DNR, but rather to protect its investment. It cost the firm $500,000 to prepare what it had thought was a technically perfect application.

Huron residents must feel like the rabbit fleeing the hound, forever looking over their shoulder to see where EMS is at. Its quest for hazardous waste landfill in a community that is as receptive to the idea as a dog to a flea is like a neverending story. DNR refusals do not diffuse the issue, they just prolong the problem.

For Huron residents this latest rejection is but a brief respite from the battle. It is not a question of if EMS will re-apply, but when.

In light of EMS' persistence, we feel it is time that the state give consideration as to limits on how many times or how often an application can be submitted for a particular proposed landfill site. In baseball it's three strikes and you're out; in football, it's four downs.

Granted, what EMS is proposing is no game. It is determined to have what it wants, regardless of the feelings of the people who live in that township and, apparently, how much it costs.

When a mother corrects a child, she tells him no and must mean it, or her authority will be challenged constantly. We feel it's time DNR said no and meant it. There should be one chance for re-application, not unlimited, and once the final determination made, stuck with.

Huron Township residents should not have to spend their days wondering how long before EMS wears the state down and gets the permit it sorely covets.

O'Leary Welcomed

To the Editor:

Just wanted to send a brief note to let you know that we welcome Steve O'Leary to the Canton community.

As the Clerk of Canton Township, I feel that he is sincerely trying to cover the activities, functions and issues of Canton in a way that displays a benefit to the community. He has been requesting back-up information from our office on a regular basis.

I realize that Steve is playing a game of catch-up to become familiar with the activities that have gone on prior to his arrival on your staff, and we have been accomodating his requests. This displays to me a sincere dedication of trying to print what is not only factual but shows that he is interested in learning about Canton Township.

Steve and I have discussed possible changes for additional material that could be placed in the board packet and we are accomodating him on those requests as well.

If there is any further way that we can assist Steve O'Leary or you as the editor of the Canton Eagle, please do not hesitate to contact this office at 397-1000, ext. 229.

To the Editor:

I have read the letters addressed to you; I will sign mine. I know the Wayne baseball program very well; I have coached many years in the program. I went to the Wayne Ford Civic League this year because of the difference in age brackets for the players. Wayne's ages do not correspond with other cities. I did not leave for any other reason. Wayne is my home, however, it is difficult for a 14-year-old to play with a 16-year-old. I hope WBA will try to correct this. I know it is difficult with the arrangements of the fields.

I served on the Wayne Recreation Board and I have seen Wayne doing away with our baseball program. Two age brackets always get shorthanded when the budget needs to be cut; our children and our elderly. It is great to see some taking care of their parents when they get too old to do it themselves.)

However, back to baseball. As for the managers and coaches in question one has coached for years and does not have a son. Where are the fathers with children? You are needed. Have you seen a baseball game without some form of disagreement. I am not saying that I condone this. The other coach has worked hard to get the program on the go.

Let's give the WBA a chance. The city does not want to run a baseball program. Good form of baseball is what some children desire. If you as a parent do not want a program, than we can let our children go to a park each day and play. However, what about that child that wants the competition?

Those who know me know I am an aggressive coach, however, rules must be followed. If a child is to play three innings and he or she meets the team practice schedules, then he should play. Let's complain about this, not if we lose, then only, that's when we complain.

Should an 8-year-old get stuck in one position - let's say the outfield and never be allowed to play where the action is because at this age not too many plays are not out in the outfield? Let's get this rule changed so that a child has to be rotated in the field he learns the game. When he or she gets 14 years old, if they want to play, they can. Our programs at this age seem to go down hill. If you are looking for a perfect baseball program, let me know; just like looking for a perfect church, and I do love my church.

Let's go to the school board and try and keep what programs we have and not let them cut our children's activities away. Let's go to the nursing homes and visit those whose children have let them down. Let's go to the coach and ask him if there is anything we can do to make their voluntary position much easier. In all do respect, we are all granted the Freedom of Speech, that's why we are called Americans.

Detroit Pride

To the Editor:

Because the appearance of our freeways is so important to the way both visitors and local residents view greater Detroit, Ford Division has become the first local organization to join Gov. Blanchard's Youth Corps in an extended beautification effort.

Our division's launch of the "Detroit Pride" program several weeks ago means six-to-eight weeks of summer employment for approximately 300 area young people, ages 18-21, who otherwise might be out of work. Equally important, through Labor Day, these people will clean more than 600 miles of freeway - an impressive 2 1/2 times the number of miles cleaned in previous years.

Joining Ford Division in this unique "Detroit Pride" program are 32 metropolitan area Ford dealers, who will be participating in individual beautification programs in their own communities. The division will match the dealer donation up to a given amount, so that a number of communities can participate and benefit from their own efforts.

These dealers are backing "Detroit Pride" with an extensive advertising campaign with one purpose: to create more awareness that we all should step up to giving Greater Detroit more "eye appeal."

On Aug. 12 our Ford Division employees will be taking steps, when we "clean out our building to clean up Detroit." You'll see us at Belle Isle and in downtown Detroit, picking up all the litter we can get our hands on.

Ford Division's "home office" is in the Renaissance Center. Our employees work here - and they live in this area.

Won't you join us in instilling "Detroit Pride" by doing your part?

Dear Sue. . .

I used to think that the only people--and I use that term loosely--who knew how to write me were computers. The beginning of the month always brought the demands for payment, usually with deadlines that in no way, shape or form fitted in with my monthly budget plan.

Well, I've adjusted to the computer correspondence and have even developed a game I play with them each month...how late can I pay this bill and still have it show up on next's month statement. I'm battling about .750...MaBell keeps screwing up my average.

Now I've discovered a whole new area of correspondence and I'm wondering just who it was that sold my name to the multitude of firms that are sending my notices of my winning contests I never entered.

So far, I've been promised either a food processor, color television or emerald as my prize on one contest, while another is offering a new car and color television among my prize selections, not to mention a different free gift every month if I visit a new vacation resort outside Jackson, Michigan and three days and two nights' accommodations free at a new planned community in Kentucky.

Okay, I'll admit I have a streak of greediness in me--don't we all? So I fell for one of the come-ons. I sent in my form, including a permission slip that I could be used in future advertising (who knows, it could have been the start of a whole new career or something).

Let me pause here to explain this wonderful contest. According to the letter, I was selected by computer for this national marketing program and if I responded within 11 days I would not only get my prize, but a bonus--an 18-inch pearl necklace. But if I were really prompt and responded in seven days, I not only would get the prize and necklace, but a diamond ring. The company was marketing their brand of famous name perfumes and if you liked you could order a variety of scents at just $9.95 per bottle, but there was no obligation to buy.

So I took a chance, ordered a couple of perfumes and mailed it in within seven days. Needless to say, I didn't get the color TV or the food processor, neither of which I needed. I got the emerald, a stone that by my guess is less than a karat and as cloudy as Newburgh Lake on a summer's afternoon. (Gems are not one of my strong points, but emeralds I do know after spending 18 months in Colombia, South America. Clarity and color tell.)

I can handle disappointment, so I shrugged it off and dove into the envelope for my pearl necklace. It looked good, but the 24-inch K-Mart brand strand I have looks better.

Next came the ring. My first diamond and my heart was aflutter. The Tiffany setting was posh looking and the sparkle told me this was better than all the prizes combined. That was until my boyfriend pointed out that what I thought was diamond was setting and that the small pinhead stone in the center was actually the diamond, all .25 karat of it.

As for the perfumes, I think I got better smelling stuff in the 11-cent aisle at the Sam's Store in Taylor when I was a kid.

Well, I've chalked that investment up to experience and pitch each new prize offering in the mail...although I did ponder the one that offered a $25,000 grand prize in a word contest and if I wanted to guarantee myself a place in the big bucks I could get a special dictionary with the master words for the contest broken down in their letter value for only $5. You see I've entered this word contest with a grand prize of a 1986 Camero, and I've...No, it wasn't what I thought. This contest was to award prizes this summer, the car won't be given away until January. Whew, I almost fell for it.

Now, you may wonder what the moral of this nonsensical column is, so I won't keep you in suspense. Remember the saying about not looking the gift horse in the mouth? When it comes to contests, it's best you open that gift horse up real wide and check for cavities, because most likely that's where the prize is coming from. There's no such thing as a free lunch, and in the case of these kinds of contests, there's no such thing as a free prize.

Say, would anybody like to buy a pearl necklace? How about an emerald?

Social Security

Alive – and getting better – at age 50

By SUE McDONALD
ANP Editor

Fifty years ago Aug. 14 then President Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed into law an act which revolutionized the idea of a happy retirement in the United States.

The Social Security Act of 1935 was a vision of the future, where retirees would not have to live in abject poverty because of lack of pension benefits. It set into motion a major institution that has become as much a part of American life for people who have grown up since the Depression as public education and post offices.

Financed through payroll deductions from both worker and employer, Social Security has gone through many changes since the first day it paid benefits to retirees in 1940. At that time the minimum benefit for retired workers was $10 per month, with the maximum set at $41.20 per month. (Today's maximum is $717 per month for a 65-year-old retiree.)

When first enacted Social Security was limited to workers in commerce and industry, but by 1939, even before the first benefits were being paid, it was amended to provide benefits for dependents of retired workers and survivors of deceased workers.

By the 1950s the program was altered to cover farmworkers, the self-employed and some state and local government employees and members of the armed forces. By 1954 disability insurance benefits authorized for disabled workers and their families were financed by a separate payroll tax.

When Social Security began paying benefits in January 1940, Ida Fuller, the very first beneficiary, received a check for $22.54. At the time of her death in January 1975, she was receiving $112.60 monthly based on general benefit increases granted over the years.

By 1965 Social Security was operating the Medicare program for hospital and medical insurance for the aged, with coverage for the long-term disabled added in 1972. That same year automatic cost-of-living adjustments in benefits and automatic adjustments in the maximum amount of covered earnings and earnings test exempt amounts provided were added.

By 1977 the "coupled" benefit formula that increased benefits faster than the rate of inflation and other improvements in program financing were made.

While the act itself went through a variety of changes to keep it in step with the times, its most difficult test came in the 1980s, when the durability of the program was in doubt. Affected by high inflation and unemployment and other factors, which had eroded the trust fund reserves, the Congress took action to restore the financial soundness of the system. In making the changes, the lawmakers made a particular effort to have any burden shared by both current workers and by present and future beneficiaries.

The Social Security Act of 1925 provided coverage for less than 60 percent of the U.S. workforce, but today more than 90 percent is covered, with coverage of workers in private commerce and industry pegged at 99.7 percent.

Social Security began to grow almost immediately after FDR signed the act. It opened its first field office in Austin, Texas, in October 1936 and within less than eight months there were 140 across the United States. Today there are more than 1,300 field offices, 34 teleservice centers and 78 resident stations in the country.

That may sound like a lot of centers to handle questions or problems with Social Security, but not so when you look at just one of those field offices...located in Inkster. Its total service area covers approximately 200 square miles, taking in the communities of Inkster, Garden City, Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Belleville, New Boston and surrounding areas. It serves an estimated 30,200 Social Security beneficiaries, who receive some $12,976,000 in benefits each month. It also works with 2,711 supplemental insurance recipients who receive $603,000 in benefits monthly.

The growth has also been the same with the nine-digit Social Security number. By the end of 1937 more than 37 million numbers had been assigned. Today about 6 million numbers are issued yearly, with more than 285 million numbers issued to date.

Just about everyone is affected by Social Security these days. Nine out of 10 workers pay into the program and more than one in seven--well over 36 million--receive monthly disability, survivor or retirement benefits. Its impact has been nothing short of revolutionary. Benefits provide a modest income base for most retirees who are able to live more independent lives and millions of children can count on benefits should a parent die or start getting retirement or disability checks.

Social Security has come along way in five decades, and with the renewed vigor infused in it by changes two years ago, the feeling now is that it will be here for its next milestone...100 years of service.

Social Security, enacted in 1935, completed its first year of benefit payment in 1940. In December 1940 there were 222,000 beneficiaries on the rolls. In December 1984 36.5 million were receiving monthly Social Security benefits.

Welcome aboard

To the Editor:

Recent resignations from Mr. Andy Panda of the Knight's Inn and Marilyn Eddy fo Community Reproduction left two vacancies on the Canton Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Both Marilyn and Andy were long-time board members. Due to increased work loads at their respective businesses, they were unable to continue on the board.

Sincere appreciation is felt for their past endeavors, in both time and effort. They will remain active members at a committee level.

Dr. Michael Shaft of Shaft Chiropractic and Mr. Tim Ford of Modern Insurance have been unanimously accepted to fill the vacancies through the balance of 1985.

We wish to welcome Mr. Shaft and Mr. Ford to the board and wish them success.

To the Editor:

I would like to thank the citizens of Westland for taking the time to get the information necessary in making the decision on the special millage election of July 30, 1985.

dan's dogs

by dan a morris

Editor's note: Dan Morris has been a professional dog trainer for more than 20 years and has worked in all phases of dog training. If you have a specific problem, his advice is available by writing to him care of Associated Newspapers Inc., P.O. Box 578, Wayne, Michigan 48184. He will reply in this column.

The hardest lesson to teach a person is how to communicate with his dog. Every dog gives warning signs before doing good or bad. However, most of us have no idea of what to look for. Even with a chart illustrating the dog's moods of aggression, bulliness, fear or joy we remain confused because each dog is an individual and has his own idiosyncrasies.

If you've ever visited a foreign country and were unable to speak the language of that country, you'd use eye contact and hand gestures to express yourself. Your dog is in the same situation as a person on foreign land because he does not understand English or any other language. Instead, he responds to phonetic word association and/or body language.

In the home environment, the most common example of silent communication would be when company is over. Your dog comes into the room and gives you a certain "look," and you know immediately he has to go outside to relieve himself. Your guest would not be aware of what your dog was telling you, because the communication between you and your dog is taught by experience only.

Communication is given by your dog in the way he barks - from a "play" bark to the one that tells you there is an intruder or someone outside. Eventually, you will be able to differentiate between the two. When your dog has done something wrong your initial reaction is to scold: "What did you do?" He anticipates your reaction and tucks his tail between his legs, wets on the floor or scoots his belly across the floor showing submissiveness as he tries to get away from you.

When there has been no misdeed on the dog's part, his reaction is just the opposite. When you come home, he is jumping, running in circles, his tail wagging vigorously, showing happiness at your arrival. Another form of communication is the dog in play - grabbing a shoe or a pillow, charging toward his master, stopping abruptly with his head close to the floor and his rear extended in the air as if taking a bow. If you notice the dog's eyes, they sparkle and are full of mischief. As you approach, the dog dodges right and left several times and then makes a quick exit, only to return in a matter of seconds. He's inviting you to play.

When your dog is fearful of any situation he feeds on a dual reaction - ours and his. If our dog is afraid, we notice his reaction. Our emotion's feed back to him and compound the problem. Trying to comfort the dog by telling him everything will be alright usually causes him to behave in a more pronounced derogatory way. When we control our emotions, the dog may return to normal behavior. This is why a doctor will not operate on any member of his family. His emotional involvement could affect his surgical skill.

The old saying, "You can't see the trees for the forest," is true even with dogs. We're around them daily, but we still fail to understand their form of communication even when it's there in front of us. If we would pause for a second or two and put ourselves on our dog's level, we would find we, too, are speaking an unspoken language - body language - but failing to utilize it to our advantage.

This observation will build a stronger bond and understanding between ourselves and our dog, so in the future communicating by eye contact; facial and hand gestures will be our means to develop more control of our dog without cost.

Auction participants net thank you

For animal lovers the hardest thing to do is part with their favorite critter. It was something members of the 4-H program experienced at the Wayne County 4-H Fair's livestock auction.

But the sadness was mixed with pride for the teens, many of whom garnered ribbons for the nurturing of ducks, geese, chickens, turkeys, swine sheep and goats.

The interest in the auction generated a thank you from fair organizers to businesses and individuals, who recognized the efforts of the teens by buying the prize collection of animals.

This year's grand champion ducks were purchased by Garden Fantasy in Belleville, which also purchased, as L&M

Packing, the grand champion geese.

The grand champion chickens went to Southgate Frosty Freeze, while International Building Service purchased the grand champion turkeys, Youtsey Electric the grand champion rabbits, Roger Houghton the grand champion goat, and Parkway Veterinary Clinic in Plymouth, Bart's Nursery in Canton and Ted's Supermarket in Romulus the grand champion sheep.

Vasko's Family Restaurant in Belleville and Bartell's Chiropractic Life Center in Belleville purchased the grand champion swine, with Detroit Drop Die of Belleville purchasing the grand champion beef.

Also buyers at the annual auction were Dunbar Meats,

WC3 campus sets date for open house

Wayne County Community College, Western Campus, will host its second Annual Open House, Saturday, Aug. 24 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The community is invited to participate in the day-long activities commencing with a 10K run and a one-mile "fun run."

Hot air balloon rides, entertainment, health and educational workshops, facility tours, registration and children's activities are scheduled throughout the afternoon. The event is designed to be a day of fun, fitness and discovery for persons of all ages.

Entry forms are presently available at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, 116 Fourth St. in downtown Belleville. Runners can get additional entry forms at the Western Campus after Aug. 18. There is a $3 entry fee for early registration. Participants can also register the day of the run for $5.

The Open House corresponds with the college's fall registration, which continues through September. "We want to let the community know that we are nearby, ready to serve their educational needs," says Associate Provost Milan Chonich. "The community's knowledge that we exist remains limited."

The Western Campus is situated on 100 wooded acres at 9555 Haggerty Road in Belleville. For easy access, exit Haggerty Road off of I-94 or exit Ecorse Road off I-275 and follow the signs to the campus.

In operation since 1981, the Western Campus offers vocational, academic and community services/continuing education courses designed to meet the student's career and educational needs.

100 golfers seek city tourney titles

'85 championship: An open field

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Although some of the name players are not in the field, the 1985 City Championship Golf tournament promises to be one of the most exciting in recent years, according to William Hawley, tournament director.

"Going over the entry forms I can't find some of the prominent names of the past," said Hawley, "but judging from some of the scores submitted, I believe this tournament is going to be one of the most thrilling we have had in recent years."

Former standouts such as 5-time medalist, Tom Piscopink, and Al Whited have not entered this year's competitions. Piscopink is the defending tournament as well as City of Wayne champ.

The 1985 championships will be conducted this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 10-11, on the spacious and challenging Fellows' Creek Golf Course. It is a course that many of the competitors have played in the past and it is a course that the eventual champ will have to shoot par golf to capture the title.

"It's very interesting to note," Hawley said, "that we have a phenomenon this year that we didn't have in the past. This year's field is basically made up of tournament golfers. Few are first or second flight golfers.

"I would have liked to have seen more first and second flight golfers in the field," Hawley added.

Hawley said that because there are approximately 80 golfers signed up for the competitions—less than the 100 usually ready to go—he would accept entry fees from competitors right up to tee time on Saturday.

The City Championship Golf Tournament is co-sponsored by the recreation departments of participating cities: Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Inkster, Garden City and Canton Township and The Associated Newspapers. The tournament is conducted to decide separate city championships for amateur male golfers of all of the cities.

Additional flight competitions are staged only if the total entry for a city is sufficient.

Trophies are awarded to those competitors who finish

Wayne-Ford rips Garden City to capture World Series, 8-3

By Keith A. DeMolay
ANP Special Writer

Championships are usually won on the strength of a team's pitching and defense and last Sunday afternoon's Mustang AAA All-Star World Series title game between Garden City and Wayne-Ford was no exception. Wayne-Ford parlayed the strong pitching of Jason Workman and Jason Wetmore, plus timely hitting and strong defense, to defeat Garden City, 8-3, to clinch the four-day tournament championship.

Both teams came into the afternoon's contest on a tear. Garden City had defeated Wayne-Ford, 5-4, in nine innings the previous day after trailing for most of the game, 4-0. Wayne-Ford earlier in the tournament had stunned Hamtramck and Westland to reach the finals.

The tournament championship game, hosted by the Westland Youth Athletic Association at Central Park, started out like it would be a close-to-the vest duel.

Garden City tallied in the opening inning. With one out, second baseman Eric Turbiak walked and moved to second on a single by Alan Trudell. Mike Johnson hit into a forceout at third. Trudell then stole third and home to give Garden City a 1-0 lead.

But back came Wayne-Ford to tie in their half of the first on a walk to Workman, who then stole second. Wetmore moved him to third with a single, and See WORLD SERIES Page 1-B

Belleville Cougars seek LL gridders

Although he says he is not ready to push the "panic button", Belleville Cougar Little League football coach John Yocum admits that the local club has a problem. "We don't have enough players this year and if we don't suit up enough teams the league will drop us from the organization," Yocum said.

In order to find the necessary players for the 1985 football season the Belleville Cougar Junior Football Team will conduct its final registration from 6 to 7 p.m., Aug. 7-8 behind the Belleville High School.

Practice will begin on August 12 and the first game is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 12. The Cougars have an 8-game schedule which includes Saturday night and Sunday afternoon games.

Getting in the swim. . . American style

By Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

The bare necessities were itemized: a pair of drawers, a long-skirted and long-sleeved dress, a small cape – all made of wool – plus a long pair of large lisle thread (cotton) gloves, an oil cap to cover the hair, a straw hat to shield the face and gum overshoes to guard tender feet. In an 1856 summer issue of Peterson's Magazine, "Fashions for August, Bathing Dresses" was advising women about the appropriate attire for sea bathing. A lady didn't have to be advised of the need for the corset she would wear beneath this recommended beach ensemble – all of which was to be worn in the water.

Anchored in tradition, American women didn't start swimming in any numbers until the late 19th century. Ladies dipped. They dunked. They plunged. However, as more women began to take more than the plunge, fewer and briefer bathing garments came to be required by social convention. Bathing wear in America has been a barometer not only of a change in the weather but of change in the air as well.

"Looking at bathing costume at any particular period in America's history reveals something about that era's notions of what was appropriate masculine behavior and what was appropriate feminine behavior," the Smithsonian's Claudia Kidwell observes. Kidwell, curator in the Division of Costume at the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C., notes that these prevailing "gender conventions" based upon the premise of women as the weaker and more modest sex have strongly influenced what Americans – men and women – wore in public waters.

In the beginning, man swam nude in America's rivers, lakes, ponds and swimming holes. Women, it was supposed in an earlier and more innocent time in the life of the republic, were too modest to loiter at the water's edge where men might be swimming "au naturel." President John Quincy Adams, taking an early morning dip in the Potomac, learned otherwise when reporter Anne Royall sat down on his clothes and refused to move until he gave her an exclusive interview.

Founding Father Benjamin Franklin was one of America's earliest enthusiasts of swimming as healthy and enjoyable exercise. A one-time swimming teacher, among other things, he authored "The Art of Swimming" and instructed friends like Oliver Neale in the aquatic art. In 1776, he wrote to Neale advising him to "walk coolly" into the water up to his breast, turn around toward the shore and throw an egg into the water. "Then plunge under it with your eyes open, throwing yourself towards the egg . . ."

other refreshments as they safely enjoyed rippling river waters or the ebb and flow of the great ocean, without ever leaving the city.

But soon came the siren call of distant and exotic shores – such as the one called Jersey. American men and women responded.

"Mixed sea bathing became an American innovation in the second quarter of the 19th century," Kidwell says. "In England, men and women didn't bathe together at public beaches until the early 1900s."

"A European traveler, one James Stuart, describing the sea-bathing situation at Long Branch, N.J., in 1829, decried 'ill-founded stories of want of delicacy on the part of American females since the parties always go into the water completely dressed'."

By the sea, by the beautiful sea, resorts rose: Cape May, Rockaway Beach, Atlantic City and even a rabbit-filled spot originally called Coony Island. Improving means of transportation made mixed bathing at seaside resorts more popular than ever, but American women still were not moving through the water. A male correspondent reported from Newport, R.I., in 1857, that men who wished "to cultivate the fine and froggy art of swimming unencumbered by attire" had better wait until the red flag went up warning the ladies to retire.

Mixed bathing inhibited American woman from abandoning their now more-fitted but still long-skirted bathing dresses and drawers for the ankle-length trousers and "blouse waists" being worn by European women. One New York fashion writer who admired the daring new style was forced to admit in 1868 that American ladies thought the bifurcated bathing suit "masculine and fast." And indeed, men bathing with ladies did wear a similar style. The next year, the same writer decided in print that the imports were worn only by "expert swimmers." "Not too many of those had yet surfaced," Kidwell smiles.

The tide began to turn for women in the 1860s. Increasing concern for public health led to the first trickle of an idea that swimming might be a healthy exercise for women, too. Public swimming baths were built in densely populated city neighborhoods, and, according to Kidwell, "a number of women who had probably never been covered with water before had the opportunity to learn to swim." By the end of the 19th century, women had added the joy of swimming to their lives even as their bathing costumes were losing fabric and inches and beginning to be called bathing suits.

Both out of and in the water, the 1920s was a watershed decade for American women. In 1920, they got the vote and entered the political mainstream. Swimming meets all over the to be full and not shorter than four inches above the knee. Regulations of this kind were enforced on beaches in various parts of the country well into the 1920s. Local beach police were not above hauling women away in the paddy wagon.

Peace reigned on the beaches in the 1930s. But look-alike bathing suits disappeared. A new ideal of beauty – the fit and tanned look – now motivated both sexes. Men responded by taking off their bathing suits. Men's Wear magazine crowed in 1934, "It's a darn shame the girls have to

Boysville
Organizers are attempting to contact all former Boysville students who attended from 1948 to 1969 for a school reunion planned for Oct. 18.

Boysville was founded in October 1948, by the late Edward Cardinal Mooney in collaboration with the Knights of Columbus of Michigan. Its purpose was to help Michigan boys in need. From 1948 to 1969 approximately 4,400 youngsters passed through its doors.

The greatest obstacle to the reunion is that organizers have lost contact with many of these former students and are in need of contacting them. The project has formal backing from the school itself (Br. Francis Boylan C.S.C., the school director is assisting). The long range goal is to establish a scholarship program.

Interested persons should call Chuck Bromirski at (313) 425-6077.

wear so much when they go bathing this year!" The two-piece bathing suit in the 1940s was the fashionable riposte. "Go bare-waisted," Vogue advised.

In an ultimate attempt to redress the balance, the late avant-garde designer, Rudi Gernreich, introduced his topless number in 1964. The monokini was never a commercial success, but as Gernreich pointed out several years later: "After the topless suit, the bikini became a staple."

cule, and gender conventions seem to be hanging by a slender thread or two, this admonition from Vogue magazine to American women in 1920 might not be too dated: "The modern girl is triumphant. She can wear anything she wants to wear, but, if she is wise, she will be careful not to let her freedom go to her head. After all, a bathing suit tells a more honest story than any other form of dress . . ."

Hospital dedicates mental health unit

Community residents are invited to celebrate the dedication of a new mental health services addition at Heritage Hospital by attending a community open house from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 11.

The dedication and open house programs culminate a year-long construction project at the Taylor hospital, a unit of Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA). The new 30,000-square foot, 3-story wing will add 39 inpatient mental health beds to the existing 31-bed unit, and will add a comprehensive outpatient program.

Following a brief program and ribbon cutting at 2p.m., visitors will be invited to tour the new unit, learn more about mental health and other hospital services, and enjoy refreshments.

Heritage Hospital is located at 24775 Haig, in Taylor, just west of Telegraph Road between Wick and Goddard.

Construction began last summer on the addition to the 247-bed hospital, which opened in 1977 with the only mental health unit in the 5-hospital PCHA system. Expansion was planned to respond to growing community need for mental health services.

New outpatient services will make it possible for the hospital to provide continuum of care to patients who are discharged from the mental health unit. A first approach that will be utilized in the new program will be a day of treatment. Under this plan, a patient will come in during the day, up to five days a week, for treatment while adjusting to being out of the hospital, or as an alternative to hospital admission. Outpatient therapy can provide a link between the hospital and home for people who have been patients on the mental health unit and have been discharged.

In addition to mental health services, Heritage Hospital provides a full range of medical-surgical care, outpatient medical services, community health education, a hospital-based Home Health Care program and a 24-hour emergency service.

PCHA owns and operates four other hospitals and an ambulatory center in Southeastern Michigan: Annapolis, Beyer Memorial, Outer Drive and Seaway Hospitals, and the PCHA-Oakwood Health Center.

DEAR CLIENT, IN MY OPINION:
Congress will start their month long recess this week. Most of their activity this week will have little effect on the financial markets. There are still many signs that a conflict in policy direction at the Federal Reserve Board is continuing. Last week, "unnamed" friends of Paul Volcker were saying that "he is drained emotionally and financially." The Federal Reserve Chairman denied the report; this may be a very subtle way of soliciting indications of interest.

This week, interest rates will stabilize, and may tick lower as the Fed continues to let reserves rise. Gold and silver prices may move lower in anticipation of selling programs by oil producing countries.

For this week, all traders will be holding their positions, hoping for a short term rally to higher ground. However, the market will not move out of a narrow range. We may see selling pressure develop as we near the end of the session.

For the week ahead, I think the market will offer very little suspense and very little excitement. This week most markets will open with a yawn; and close in dullness... a real nothing market in a nothing week. There is a little buying enthusiasm for secondary issues, but that may be short-lived. The general market does not seem to have a direction and seems content to trade in a narrow range. Short term traders may put downside pressure on prices by moving to the sell side at the end of the session.

OPINION FOR AUG. 4, 1985:
NOTE: Factory orders up 1.9 percent, home sales down .1 percent, leading indicators rose 1 percent, construction spending up .7 percent and machine-tool orders rose 23 percent in June; the U.S. trade deficit swells in June to $13.4 dollars; Saudi Arabia may double oil production; and Congress approves a compromise fiscal 1986 budget, leaving the government still facing annual deficits of at least $146 billion.

Old headers never die, they become unusual landmarks at Header Products of Romulus. As a tribute to their most durable worker, "Old Cold," Header Products recently spruced up their grounds with a huge flower bed and in the middle placed the 70 year old header on a pedestal. The header (which is used to smash up metal) was built between 1914 and 1918 and was purchased in 1963 by Header Products for $1,200. We are told it was still in working condition before being mounted on its permanent resting place.

curtain calls

'Piaf': Good, but too long

By RUSS OGDEN
Special to the ANP

The much heralded opening of Attic Theatre's summer production of "Piaf" reached fever pitch with an appreciative opening night audience heralding the close to the 3-hour production.

Director Daniel Yurgaitis has molded a difficult script and combined it with Edith Piaf's music into a respected production that was well received by Attic devotees. The format used is a pleasant balance between vignettes, telling the story of her life and Piaf's songs, presented in solo stances.

We are told that Piaf was a "sparrow of the gutter," married at age 15 and bore a child shortly thereafter, with the child dying when quite young. Piaf's constant desire for sex practiced both professionally and personally is firmly established as is her constant bout with alcohol, drugs, and her lack of materialistic appreciation of money which in her hands evaporated rapidly.

When the vignettes are used, however, audience involvement was sometimes sacrificed and fell short in appreciation because the characters themselves do not have time to fully develop before their disappearance from the stage.

With more than 30 roles touching Piaf during the play, familiar faces cause some confusion as to which character is whom in the identity process.

Sheri Nichols was best when singing the Piaf songs. Her inability to dramatically relate to the audience and fellow actors crippled her total effectiveness on stage.

The supporting cast is brilliant almost without exception; it is too bad that they do not have longer durations in their presentations. But, nonetheless, we get maximum performances from all.

Especially notable amongst the fine ensemble was James Lawson, whose interest in Piaf's talent - not sex - was a revealing character as projected by him, and then to later appear as a youth on a bicycle destined to eventually become her manager was a believable interpretation.

If Bethany Carpenter were performing on a New York stage, her role as Toine would certainly receive at least a nomination for outstanding performance in a supporting role in "Piaf." Carpenter's prostitute, later becoming a child-bearing wife, is a performance that gives the viewer theatrical goose bumps. Her (and Lawson's) interactions with fellow actors in scenes cause electricity to flow, and the play takes on an additional light, becoming more exciting, if only for awhile.

Mary Bremer as Madeliene (secretary and confidant to Piaf) causes emotional reaction on stage as the combining of their unlike personalities clash in superb theatre fashion.

Now the faults: "Piaf" is much too long. One has difficulty determining whether this is a revue; a mini-musical; or a rotogravure theatrically.

Piaf, unknown prior to the play opening, is still a person theatrically observed that fails to give any personal emotion to the observer. Confusion in various roles because of repeat actors does not help. In spite of these comments, a shortened version would be a lovely theatrical cup of Parisian tea.

Tickets for "Piaf" are currently on sale with performances through Aug. 18. Performances are at 8 p.m. on Thursdays and Fridays; 5:30 and 9 p.m. on Saturdays; and at 6:30 p.m. on Sundays. Group rates are also available.

Tickets are available for all performances and are available by calling 1-875-8284.

Well-known cosmetologist and popular television host assured success for a nonsensical musical, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" recently being staged at the Birmingham Theatre. Bruce (Right) played the falconer, cavorting slave Pseudolous in the production, which was at the theatre through last weekend. The production also featured Kelly Williams (left) as Hero and Coleen Downey as Philia.

looks at books

By KIMBERLY REDIGAN
ANP Special Writer

We accustomed to studying their faces for hints. Searching, we stare into the mad eyes of Charles Manson; focus on the brooding mouth of John Norman Collins; and marvel at the deceptively wholesome appearance of the cherubic Mark David Chapman.

These - the warped, the twisted, the dangerous - fascinate in some shamefully perverse way. As we study their faces we seek to understand the dark underworld of madness that breeds the violent acts and unspeakable crimes which have made these people infamous.

In her book, The Nutcracker, Shana Alexander examine a face which is memorable for its toothy, jack o'lantern grin and its stormy, intense eyes. This particular face belongs to France Bernice Bradshaw Schreuder.

Frances Bernice Bradshaw, the youngest of four siblings, was born in Salt Lake City to Bernice Jewett and Franklin James in 1938. Although the mother, a high-spirited, nervous woman, and the father, a thrifty workaholic, did not have an idyllic marriage, their household appeared stable and relatively happy. As the story unfolds, however, a dangerous pattern of incidents is established involving the interaction of personalities within the family. One of the most revealing of these incidents occurs when Frances is a baby.

An inconsolable child, Frances will not cease her incessant crying. In an effort to assuage the baby, Bernice orders the entire family to surround the crib and sing to the child for hours on end. This scene occurs over and over again while Frances is a child and manifests itself in more dangerous ways as she grows older.

While Alexander does an admirable job of depicting Frances's background and life as a child, she devotes the majority of the book to reporting to a family which is tainted by mental illness, growing astronomically wealthy and in the act of disintegrating. It is not until the middle of the book that one discovers why Frances earns a place in the haunting gallery of faces which represent the darker side of human nature.

While her crime was not as grisly as Manson's, as macabre as Collin's or as publicized as Chapman's, it was among the most calculated and taboo of all crimes. On July 23, 1978, Frances Schreuder orchestrated the death of her father by the hand of her own son.

Unlike most notorious crimes, the motive for this patricide was not subject to debate. Frances's motive was money. Because Alexander is released from the arduous task of determining motivation, she is able to step back from the objective facts surrounding the crime and immerse herself in the subjective, mad world of Frances's mind.

This character study of a brilliant, sick woman with an insatiable appetite for money is intriguing and well done. An infantile adult with a limitless narcissistic streak, Frances is demanding, abusive to her family and out touch with reality. When forgery, embezzlement and threatening her father do not yield enough money to satisfy her excessive demands, she resorts to murder.

Although she and Larry, her "mama's boy" who actually pulled the trigger, are not arrested until 1980, they are suspected by her older sisters who are only too familiar with their younger sister's manipulative, erratic personality. Bernice, however, stands by her "baby," financially and emotionally, despite the unbelievable abuse Frances heaps upon her and the overwhelming facts which point to Frances's guilt in the murder.

MONEY, MADNESS, MURDER: A FAMILY ALBUM

Alexander handles this dramatic story well. Because the facts themselves are so harrowing, it is not necessary for her to revel in emotionalism.

Except for a few passages which are inappropriately poetic, Alexander adopts a straight-forward, journalistic approach. She is especially adept at depicting Frances as seen through the eyes of others. As a fervent patron of the New York City ballet, Frances elicits pity and disgust from those who must tolerate her madness if they're are to accept her money. Alexander's recount of Frances's relationship with the ballet is simultaneously tender and tough. This vacillation between tender and tough in many ways aptly describes Frances herself.

The Nutcracker is a remarkable book about a remarkable family. A family which was literally tyrannized and controlled by one mad member. Ultimately, this madness spread. At book's end one wonders whether the survivors can ever reconstruct any semblance of normalcy in their lives.

The Nutcracker by Shana Alexander is available at Waldenbooks at Westland Mall.
